

FACULTY OF MUSIC
UNIVERSITY OF ARTS IN BELGRADE
FACULTY OF MUSIC
UNIVERSITY OF ARTS IN BELGRADE

15th Biennial International Conference on Music Theory and Analysis

NARRATIVE WALKS THROUGH MUSIC

4-6 October 2024, University of Arts in Belgrade

<https://narrativewalks24.weebly.com/>

The 15th Biennial International Conference on Music Theory and Analysis, organized by the Faculty of Music, University of Arts in Belgrade, Serbia, will take place from Friday 4 to Sunday 6 October 2024 at the University of Arts in Belgrade. We welcome paper proposals on different aspects of musical narrativity, relating to music of any genre and historical period. The keynote speakers will be Joan Grimalt (Escola Superior de Música de Catalunya, Barcelona, Spain), Michael Klein (Boyer College of Music and Dance, Philadelphia), and Michael Allis (School of Music, University of Leeds, UK).

Program Committee

Márta Grabócz (Faculty of Arts, University of Strasbourg, France)

Jerrold Levinson (University of Maryland, USA)

Joan Grimalt (Escola Superior de Música de Catalunya, Barcelona, Spain)

Ildar Khannanov (Peabody Institute, Johns Hopkins University, USA)

Sanja Kiš Žuvela (Academy of Music, University of Zagreb, Croatia)

Leon Stefanija (Department of Musicology, Faculty of Philosophy, University of Ljubljana, Slovenia)

Denis Collins (Faculty of Humanities, Arts and Social Sciences, The University of Queensland, Australia)

Benedict Taylor (School of Music, University of Edinburgh, UK)

Ivana Medić (Institute of Musicology SASA)

Zoran Božanić (Faculty of Music, University of Arts, Serbia)

Jelena Mihajlović Marković (Faculty of Music, University of Arts, Serbia)

Ivana Vuksanović (Faculty of Music, University of Arts, Serbia)

Milena Medić (Faculty of Music, University of Arts, Serbia)

Ivana Ilić (Faculty of Music, University of Arts, Serbia)

Srđan Teparić (Faculty of Music, University of Arts, Serbia)

Senka Belić (Faculty of Music, University of Arts, Serbia)

Marko Aleksić (Faculty of Music, University of Arts, Serbia)

Tijana Ilišević (Faculty of Music, University of Arts, Serbia)

Organization Committee

Srđan Teparić and Tijana Ilišević, Conference coordinators

Aleksandra Ivković

Tanja Mijatović

Milena Stanojević

Natalija Stanković

Conference theme

“Narrative Walks through Music” is a reinterpretation of the title of Umberto Eco’s books, Six Walks in the Fictional Woods. The woods serve as a metaphor for the narrative text. Eco suggests that the reader is the one who determines the pace of movement through a literary text and the speed of events within it. The conference title specifically calls on analysts to treat music as Eco’s woods and to provide their own insights as participants regarding possible questions related to the phenomenon of musical narrativity. Possible themes include:

General

Narrative about music vs. narrative in music; musical narrativity as a distinct field in the science of music – yes or no; can music tell a story, and does it exhibit a narrative tendency; musical narrativity – properties, nature, and scope of research; musical theory/literary theory – literary theory/musical theory; at what point could we speak about the demarcation line between music and literature, and what distinguishes literary and musical signification.

Analysis

Possible analytical phases – surface and depth levels of analysis; modalities of narrative analysis; actors, gestures, signs, elements, patterns, topics, themes, styles, cultural units, discursive connections through musical time and space, discourse, and meaning; recognizing musical narrative – levels of meaning, their hierarchical differences, and awareness of their existence; is musical narrative derivative or part of grammar; relationships between individual narrative elements and ways they merge into a whole; cultural significance differences within musical narrative and their transvaluation; the role of narrative archetypes in genre creation; the course of ‘events’ in music and its discursive power – analogies with natural language.

Interpretation – Listener, Analyst, Critic

Is there a risk of ‘overinterpretative’ musical narrative, and where do the boundaries of interpretation lie; semantic contexts that involve a narrator in a musical work; narrative comments as part of grammar, the role of interpreters in interpreting and adding narrative comments; the importance of recognizing narrative fields in musical criticism; application of achievements in musical narrativity in contemporary performance practice; contradictions and conflicts in the musical narrative – their reconfiguration through musical time in the listener’s consciousness; ‘exemplary’ analyst vs. ‘empirical’ analyst – the relationship between objectivity and subjectivity in interpreting musical narrative.

And so on...

Call for papers

Submission deadline for proposals:

April 15, 2024. Notification of acceptance: by the end of May 2024.

Proposal categories:

- Papers (20 minutes maximum, with 10 minutes for discussion)
- Panel discussion for 4 to 6 participants (15 minutes for each paper plus 30-minute discussion afterwards)

Proposal guidelines

- For individual papers:
 - The author’s name and affiliation
 - E-mail address
 - The title of the paper
 - An abstract (up to 300 words)
 - Keywords (up to 5)

- A short biography (the education and research field, up to 150 words plus 5 representative publications)
- Equipment Request

- For panel discussion:
 - A title of a panel discussion
 - An abstract of a panel discussion (up to 500 words)
 - Keywords of a panel discussion (up to 7)
 - For each of the panel discussion participants: see the submission guidelines for the proposal of spoken papers
 - Equipment Request

Further information for applicants

- Proposals should be sent as a single MS Word document and should be suitable for publication in the conference book of abstracts. Please send your proposal (in Word format, not PDF) to the following e-mail address: music.narrative24@fmu.bg.ac.rs
- The official language of the Conference is English.
- The format of the conference would be twofold: online and in person, as a hybrid event. Conference fee: 80 €, 40 € online
- All enquiries should be sent to the organisers at music.narrative24@fmu.bg.ac.rs

Kindest regards,

PhD Tijana Ilišević and PhD Srđan Teparić,

Conference coordinators